Airway in everyday practice: From knowledge to implementation

"Once you see it, you cannot unsee it": We want to show you what to see and what to do in the dental office on a daily basis.

Dr. Matthias Müller · Dr. John Flutter · Kathrin Falk

WHAT IT'S ABOUT

This course shows how airway concepts truly work in everyday practice. Dr. John Flutter brings more than 40 years of experience from daily practice and shows how this knowledge can be translated into modern concepts and implemented within the practice. Based on the Open Airway concept, participants experience how myofunctional training can be integrated into the dental practice in a structured way: from hands-on diagnostics and practice organization to building an interdisciplinary network. Another goal is to build local structures so that what participants learn has a lasting impact on site. A highly practical course with a proven blueprint for immediate implementation.

CONTENTS

- The path to the concept: insights from everyday practice
- Hands-on diagnostics: live assessment and practical training
- Practice structure: a blueprint for workflows, roles and team communication
- From network to scalable concept: collaboration with orthodontics, osteopathy, breathing therapy and more
- The Myo Coach: role, qualifications and integration into the practice
- Local Open Airway sites: setup and perspectives

GOAL

To integrate myofunctional training into your own practice in a structured way, actively involve the team, collaborate across disciplines and build local structures.

KEY MESSAGE

Structure follows posture.

SPEAKERS

Dr. Matthias Müller
Dentist with 40 years of experience in his own practice in Hamburg, focusing on function, precise diagnostics and patient-centered education. He shows how airway concepts can be integrated into the dental practice in a structured way.

Dr. John Flutter
Qualified at King's College Hospital, London, in 1971, with more than 40 years of orthodontic experience focused on establishing nasal breathing. A certified breathing and Buteyko practitioner who has lectured on myofunctional influences on facial growth in 67 countries.

Kathrin Falk
Breathing coach. Over the past months, she has developed the structure of the local Open Airway sites and a practical concept for implementing myofunctional training in everyday practice.
